Hannah Rimer

Brand Statement

Hannah Grace Design is rooted in a lifelong passion for the transformative beauty and power of art. I believe thoughtful design breathes new life into neglected spaces and overlooked details. Grounded in both interior and graphic design, my goal is to craft, elevate, and revitalize what is already here with efficiency. I help individuals and businesses put their strongest foot forward—spanning photography, brand identity, and digital advertising to residential styling, decorating, and staging. Hannah Grace Design desires to give back to this world through art, one project at a time.

Target Audience: House Stagers

Where the problem occurs:

House Stagers deal with furniture and client turnover daily. The main thing that this affects is their company warehouse, which leads to a chaotic work environment. A stager's warehouse is the most vital part of the business because it holds the resources for their services. When your assets are not easily accessible, your spaces are cluttered, and furniture locations are unknown, the designer ends up working double time and spending more money.

Imagine having a disorganized, cluttered office!

Target Audience: House Stagers

Issues House Stagers Face:

- Inventory (lack of, unknown availability, timing)
- Organization (warehouse is chaotic, unknown location)
- Warehouse cleanliness
- Trouble committing because of time and inventory
- Chaotic and confusing tagging system
- Physically having to design in-person

Why Solve this Issue?

Efficiency is halted by the lack of inventory tracking and organization. This affects scheduling, co-worker communication, furniture accessibility, and overall awareness. If we dissolve these issues, productivity will increase which leads to profits increasing and an overall better work lifestyle.

Target Audience: House Stagers
